The last 2 floors can also be a separate residential unit with a total area of 97m².

The house can be used as one complete unit depending on the final wishes of the buyer, which provides various benefits depending on the purpose of the building.

Underfloor heating is installed in the entire house along with air conditioners in all rooms.

Parking for 2 cars is located in the yard of this excellent house.

The house is being sold in a roh-bau (unfinished) phase, with the option to complete it at a total price of €600,000.

The urban and peaceful environment close to the beautiful city of Poreč and its beaches make this house an extremely interesting opportunity on the market with a breathtaking view.

The possibility of separating 2 residential units makes this house suitable for tourist rental and business investment.
